

Submitted by:
Bre England
Warren Central High School

In the News!

December 12, 2011

The gift of giving

Warren Central High School students learned the true meaning of Christmas this year. Students and staff members at the high school have raised over eight-thousand dollars to provide Christmas gifts for underprivileged elementary school children in the township. Eighty-two children were sponsored by clubs, classes, and individuals.

The elementary school children experienced a fun-filled evening hosted by the Warren Central Student Council. The students and their sponsors played games, did arts and crafts, had pizza and cookies and got a visit from Santa. The younger children spent time with the high school students and staff opening Christmas gifts that they may not have otherwise had.

This annual event is truly inspirational. It warms the hearts of all people involved and helps to put smiles on the faces of many children that often go without. The high school students can walk away with a warm feeling and the understanding that giving can be more rewarding than receiving.