Warren Central earns top honors at Model United Nations competition

Last Sunday marked the end of the 24th annual Model United Nations of the University of Chicago (MUNUC). This year thousands of high school students gathered to recreate the legislative and decision making process of the various branches of the United Nations and other similar intergovernmental bodies. These simulations have provided opportunities for delegates from diverse backgrounds to cooperate and collaborate in their various committees. This year MUNUC hosted over 2,300 high school students from over 100 schools, 17 states and 7 countries across 4 continents. MUNUC is widely regarded and one of the largest and most prestigious high school conferences in the world.

Warren Central sent a delegation of 29 students, representing India, the Peoples Commissar for Justice for the Soviet Republic and the Minister of Money for the Ethiopian DERG. These 29 students did an outstanding job of representing not only their respective governments but also Warren Central. Of the 29 students, MUNUC recognized eight Warren Central students for their hard work and oratorical skill. The eight students recognized are Natalie Verhines, Rachel Daugherty, Adrian Wolanski, Hayden Wiesinger, Jenna Stoffel, Jeremiah Mickey, Jacob Bullock and Darby Mulligan. To put this in perspective, Warren Central represented seventeen committees and our school received recognition in 5 of those 17 committees. If there was an award for outstanding school, Warren Central performed well enough to have been awarded this honor. The students are sponsored by Social Studies teacher Nick Salemi and Amy Moeller.
